Chairman's Letter

On behalf of the Norwich University Board of Trustees, I am proud to present the 2008 Annual Report. I know that you will be proud of Norwich as you read of our successes and achievements of the past year.

As I approach my 50th reunion in 2009, I find myself reflecting on my time at Norwich and the experiences that impacted my life. It was there as a young cadet, working and growing alongside young men who remain my closest friends to this day, that I learned to thrive in an environment of structure and discipline. That experience and support helped me to develop the drive and passion that have carried me throughout a successful career in the Army. Each of my Norwich friends is successful in his own chosen field of endeavor, and I believe Norwich helped each of them and provided the framework for them in their careers. I know that many of you had similar experiences, and credit Norwich for the success you have achieved.

I have been actively involved with Norwich since I first stepped foot on campus as a Rook in the fall of 1955, and though I have always been proud of my alma mater, I have never been more proud than I am today. During my 36 years of active duty, and now as President of the Association of the U.S. Army, I have always thought it a privilege to call myself a Norwich graduate. My fellow alumni truly embody Alden Partridge's ideals, strengthening our nation through their military service both here and abroad, their leadership in the world of business, and by volunteering in their communities. Every one of them, a proud Norwich graduate. All of them, Citizen Soldiers.

Today, Norwich is gaining national recognition for the work our students and faculty are doing in the classroom, in academic research, in athletics, and through volunteering locally and globally. This past May, Norwich graduated more than 400 bachelor's degree students, ready to assume leadership positions in business and in the military. In June, another 800 graduated from the School of Graduate Studies' ten master's degree programs. This spring we broke ground on a new dormitory which will provide our civilian students with an atmosphere in which they can develop their leadership skills while pursuing a Norwich education. This is an incredible time to be involved with Norwich, and I could not be more proud to be your Chairman of the Board.

I hope you read this report and are as proud of Norwich as I am. If you are interested in lending your support by participating in the Norwich Forever! campaign, contact the Office of Development and Alumni Relations at 802.485.2300 or campaign@norwich.edu.

Norwich Forever!

Gordon R. Sullivan '59
General, U.S. Army (Ret.)
Chairman of the Board of Trustees

President's Message

The fiscal year ending May 31, 2008 was an exceptionally strong one for Norwich University. Thanks to the generous support of our alumni and friends, the Norwich Forever! campaign continues to impact the lives of our students in ways only previously imagined. While last year's Annual Report focused on how the campaign had transformed our physical campus through the completion of the Wise Campus Center and the Sullivan Museum, this one brings attention to transformation of a different sort — academic.

A primary objective of the NU2019 strategic plan is to strengthen our academic reputation, and to that end the campaign has already raised nearly twice the goal established for academic programming. This is because our alumni understand that the better recognized the University is for the strength of its academic programs, the more successful Norwich will be going forward. It is the good schools — the quality institutions — that will survive in these uncertain economic times.

In this report you will read about how your gifts to academics are impacting the University through the funding of undergraduate research projects. Conducted by teams of faculty and students over the summer, these rigorous academic endeavors reap multiple benefits for Norwich: motivating students; inspiring faculty; bringing prestige to the University; and improving the overall quality of the student body by attracting topnotch applicants.

Needless to say, the stronger our academic reputation, the more your Norwich degree is worth.

The report also speaks of the generosity of our donors and what we have been able to accomplish since the launch of the campaign, with only 26 percent alumni participation. With the campaign closing a year from now, I need everyone coming to the plate who has yet to make a gift. If you have been holding back, wondering, "How is the school really doing?" I can only respond that it has never been healthier. By every measure we have — Corps size, student quality, the strength of the endowment, the physical plant, the strength of the faculty, new academic hires, the growth of our graduate programs, the pushing of our brand — we are making progress towards the goals of NU 2019. At the same time, in the highly competitive world of higher education, we have many pressing needs across campus, from new lab equipment to endowed faculty chairs.

The call to action was made three years ago, and time is running out. The names of the men and women that will be carved in granite on the next set of commemorative stairs, the Bicentennial Stairs, are being determined today, by their actions. Each of you left your mark on Norwich in some way, either during your time here or in the years since. Now is the time to make sure you are not left out of this exciting period in Norwich's history. Do what you can to make your University an even stronger place for your children or grandchildren...or even great-grandchildren. While none of us will be around 200 years from now, with your help Norwich will continue to serve our nation...forever.

Norwich forever!

Norwich Forever! campaign update: Doyle Hall

With student enrollment growing, the introduction of three women's varsity sports, and more and more fans coming out to cheer on the Cadets' winter teams, the University's indoor athletic facilities are nearing the bursting point.

The solution to this problem will begin in the spring of 2009, when Norwich breaks ground on a new facility that will connect Andrews Hall and Kreitzberg Arena. Norwich will name this new building in honor of lead donor Allen M. Doyle '71, two-time U.S. Senior Open champion, alumnus, and Norwich Trustee. Filling in the void that currently exists between Andrews and Kreitzberg, Doyle Hall will extend out and around the front of Andrews Hall.

The University currently has two principal athletic buildings: Andrews Hall, opened in 1980, which houses the main gymnasium for the campus, as well as racquetball courts, equipment and training rooms, and offices for Athletic Department staff; and Kreitzberg Arena, opened in 1998, which features the ice rink and weight room for the hockey teams, and offices for coaches and administrators. Both facilities are in sound condition, however, neither building has a concession area large enough to adequately serve fans, and Andrews Hall's heating and ventilating system needs serious upgrading.

At 30,000 square feet, Doyle Hall is not the biggest construction project in recent years — the Wise Campus Center is more than twice as large — however, it presents some unique challenges. Much of the construction site is squeezed between the north wall of Kreitzberg Arena and the south wall of Andrews Hall, a distance of only 24 feet. Construction crews will need to deliver all steel, concrete, and other materials into this narrow area by crane.

When complete, the $8 million facility will tie together Kreitzberg Arena and Andrews Hall, allowing seamless movement between the two facilities, as opposed to the canvas-topped boardwalk now linking the buildings.

With 21 new office spaces, all members of the Athletic Department will be housed under one roof for the first time in several decades, and every head coach will have his or her own office. Currently, multiple coaches and assistant coaches are crammed into the offices in Andrews and Plumley.

The facility will add three new team locker rooms and increase the overall locker room space by at least 40 percent, allowing for every student who would like a locker to have one.

For fans who come to campus to watch basketball, hockey, volleyball, or wrestling, Doyle Hall will be most noteworthy for its two-story grand lobby, which will feature a large concession area that can accommodate simultaneous sporting events.

In addition, an inviting reception area on the second floor will house the University's Athletic Hall of Fame, and Norwich will upgrade the heating and ventilating systems in Andrews Hall.

"Athletics is an important component of the Norwich experience. Our students, coaches and fans all deserve topnotch facilities," said President Richard W. Schneider. "Doyle Hall represents an important step toward providing the Norwich community with a true, modern athletic complex."

The Power of Transformation

Norwich's most successful capital campaign ever continues to transform

No one could have predicted the overwhelming success of the Norwich Forever! campaign. Launched at Homecoming 2005, it has generated more than $67 million in gifts and pledges through the close of fiscal year 2008. What this translates to is nothing short of transformational. In the past three years, academic program enhancements and scholarship support have grown; our national reputation has reached unprecedented heights; and the campus has been redefined with the addition of the Sullivan Museum and the Wise Campus Center.

In this report you can read in more detail about how the Norwich Forever! campaign is impacting the University's learning community through the funding of academic research, which in turn enhances the school's academic reputation. The preceding page explains how Doyle Hall (Athletic Complex Phase II) will serve to strengthen athletics, while the following page describes how the White Chapel renovations are improving co-curricular life.

And although the finish line is in sight, the race is far from over. Six of the campaign's eight fundraising priorities have been met, but there is still work to be done. With slightly over a year left in the campaign, Doyle Hall, the Sullivan Museum, and the added projects of the White Chapel renovation and Memorial Plaza project, all remain top priorities as we head into the home stretch.

If you have not yet participated in the campaign, now is the time to become part of this unprecedented drive to enrich the Norwich experience for every student on our campus.

THE SECRET LIFE OF PLANTS

Norwich professor investigates why flowers bloom

It happens every spring: flowers bloom, and Norwich students sign up to spend the summer helping Associate Prof. Alison Fisher probe the mysteries of how, when and why they do.

Quinn Conklin

And some of those students are perennials. Take Quinn Conklin. During the summer of 2007, Conklin worked in the biochemistry lab under Dr. Fisher's grant from the Vermont Genetics Network (VGN), and enjoyed the experience enough to apply for a summer 2008 fellowship as a Weintz Research Scholar.

Conklin's research delves into the secret life of plants, specifically the chemical, molecular and genetic factors that trigger growth in two plants Dr. Fisher and her researchers have been probing and prodding — and even depriving of sleep — for more than five years: Pharbytis nil (the violet, or Japanese, morning glory) and Arabidopsis thaliana (thale cress).

The key appears to lie in how the amount and timing of daylight sets off the production of ethylene, a hormone that comes in the form of a gas. "Some plants count light hours (before deciding to flower),” said Dr. Fisher, who chairs the Student Research Committee. “Some plants count night hours. It’s really crazy.”

Student life, academics

In addition to exposing Arabidopsis thaliana plants to different amounts of daylight and darkness, Conklin’s work included two weeks of harvesting tissues every 24 hours, then extracting RNA for examination of genetic changes.

Another student, Sean Paz, is also working with Dr. Fisher on the same subject under an award from the Chase Endowment for Academic Excellence.

Dr. Fisher, who recently received a $70,000 grant from VGN to continue her work, expects to find plenty of pathways for student researchers to follow well after summer ends. “We still won’t know all the details,” she said. “Beyond my lifetime, I’m sure.”

IT ALL ADDS UP Student researcher finds inspiration in numbers

Give up a summer off to research the mathematical intricacies of Edge-Magic and Vertex-Magic labeling of regular graphs? For two years in a row? Jeremy Holden calls it a no-brainer.

Jeremy Holden

“Would I rather paint houses?” asked the 21-year old junior from Westminster, Vermont, after delivering the seventh in the series of brown bag seminars by the 2008 crop of 14 students working on summer research fellowships. “This is awesome, to do this.”

He likes this work — mapping the patterns within cycles of lined-up numbers that add up to the same number — enough to devote hours a day to trying to understand the magic. And following them long after actual classes let out for the day — or for summer.

“There are a few people in math who seem excellent up to a point, but get stuck when questions get too difficult, and they quit easily,” said Associate Prof. Dan McQuillan, who is guiding Holden’s research. “By contrast, Jeremy, in addition to being extremely talented, is also willing to keep working on a very difficult problem for a long time — a crucial ability for a researcher.”

So is the ability to sit and concentrate for hours on end, with relatively primitive research tools. “It’s generally pen and paper,” Holden said. “Computers don’t help a lot.”

Quite a revelation for a guy who came to Norwich to major in physics. “I didn’t know what math was,” said Holden, who is conducting his research under a fellowship award from the Chase Endowment for Academic Excellence. “I don’t think a lot of people know what mathematicians do. [In high school] they never show you the creative aspect. It never clicked. Maybe I was just immature.”

Immature is not how McQuillan would have described Holden when they met two years ago at the training sessions for the William Lowell Putnam International Math Competition. “I met Jeremy in his freshman year,” Dr. McQuillan said. “It was clear to me immediately that he seeks a much higher level of understanding than normal people.”

Holden says the work has “opened a door” for him. “For me, the problems are interesting in general. The natural inclination is to figure it out.”

With still two more years to go before graduation, Holden is already looking ahead to indulging in, and sharing, his joy of math well beyond his undergraduate years. “I want to go to graduate school for math,” Holden said. “To do this all day, and be able to teach people, is like a dream.”

A Home for the Band White Chapel renovations nothing short of heavenly

It was a long winter for Major Tim Smith, but not because of the weather. Norwich's band director spent the months of October through March conducting rehearsals in the basement of the Engineering, Math and Science complex. "It was far from ideal," he says. "We were disturbing the professors above us."

Thanks to the Norwich Forever! campaign, those days are but a distant memory, as Major Smith, his students, and their instruments, are now happily ensconced in the basement of the newly renovated White Chapel.

A recently completed project of the Norwich Forever! campaign, the chapel renovations have been nothing short of a miracle as far as Smith is concerned. He went from having his office in one location, the band instruments in another, and his practice space in yet another, to a sound-proofed classroom with climate-controlled storage space and an office, all under one roof.

For University Chaplain William Wick, whose office is located on the main level, the renovations have also brought welcome improvements. "The old chapel was strictly a singular use building. The structure of it was such that whatever was happening upstairs could be heard downstairs, and vice versa," Wick says.

To address the problem, crews installed insulated double wallboard in the downstairs rooms, and attached the ceiling to springs to absorb vibration. "Even though we are directly underneath the chapel we can have a full band rehearsal with almost no sound being heard upstairs," Smith says.

The area at the front of the chapel, behind where a velvet curtain hung, has been converted into Reverend Wick's office and a conference room suitable for meetings. The curtain has been replaced by an attractive wood-paneled wall. "The area behind the curtain was not being used for anything," Wick explains. "It was simply wasted space."

Wick noted that E.F. Wall and Associates worked extremely fast and did beautiful work. "It's a joy to see the chapel now," he says.

According to Major Smith, the students in the band truly appreciate the changes made to the building on their behalf. "They feel like the University is investing in them, which in turn reinforces their efforts," Smith says.
