CHAIRMAN'S LETTER

NORWICH IS A SMALL UNIVERSITY in a small Vermont town, vibrant with big and innovative ideas. From exploring the viability of solar-powered homes in severe northern climates through our Center for the Integrated Studies of the Built Environment, to serving on the frontlines against cyber-terrorism, we are taking on issues that would be big challenges for any college.

We are proud of our small classes and excellent faculty across the entire campus. In particular, we are gaining recognition in the specialized areas of information security, alternative energy, and business continuity in the case of natural disasters.

Our athletics program is also garnering a lot of well-deserved recognition. In a game televised to a national audience, our men's hockey team captured its third national championship in eleven years. Our women's hockey team, women's rugby team and drill team also made strong showings in national competitions.

Alden Partridge founded this institution with an ambitious goal: to transform higher education in America. Nearly 200 years later, Norwich continues to accomplish more than one might expect from a school with 2,000 undergraduates. Increasingly, our University is appearing on the national stage.

The Norwich community has proved itself to be well-rounded, progressive, and ready to tackle any challenge. Norwich graduates like Grenville Dodge, chief engineer of the Union Pacific Railroad, and Edward Dean Adams, who developed the first electric plant at Niagara Falls, helped build America in the 19th Century.

We have every reason to believe our students today will play the same role for the United States in the 21st Century.

GEN Gordon R. Sullivan, USA (Ret.) '59

CHAIRMAN OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

NORWICH UNIVERSITY

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

I RECENTLY RECEIVED A LETTER FROM a member of the Old Guard that talks about the Norwich he went to as compared with the Norwich of today. A former regimental commander, he specifically cites the Corps of Cadets and how professional they have become. He ends his letter by saying, “I will always revere ‘my Norwich’ but will be the first to admit that today’s Norwich is a far, far better place.”

The Norwich he went to is not the Norwich you attended, nor is it the Norwich of the Class of 2014, who arrived on the Hill this past August. This class enters a Norwich with a Corps of Cadets that stands at 1,400—the largest in our school’s history—along with 900 civilian students. It enters a Norwich whose alumni now include 3,800 graduates of our online master’s degree programs. And a Norwich whose alumni are proudly serving in Iraq and Afghanistan to combat terrorism.

Norwich’s founder, Captain Alden Partridge, believed that Americans needed not only to be educated, but they needed to protect the country. As your University president, I have adhered to our founder’s mission of educating our youth in such a way as to protect and build the Republic. Today, through an education grounded in values such as honor and integrity, and undergraduate and graduate degree programs in diplomacy, information assurance, construction management, and civil engineering, we are remaining true to Partridge’s mission, a mission that has remained unchanged for nearly 200 years.

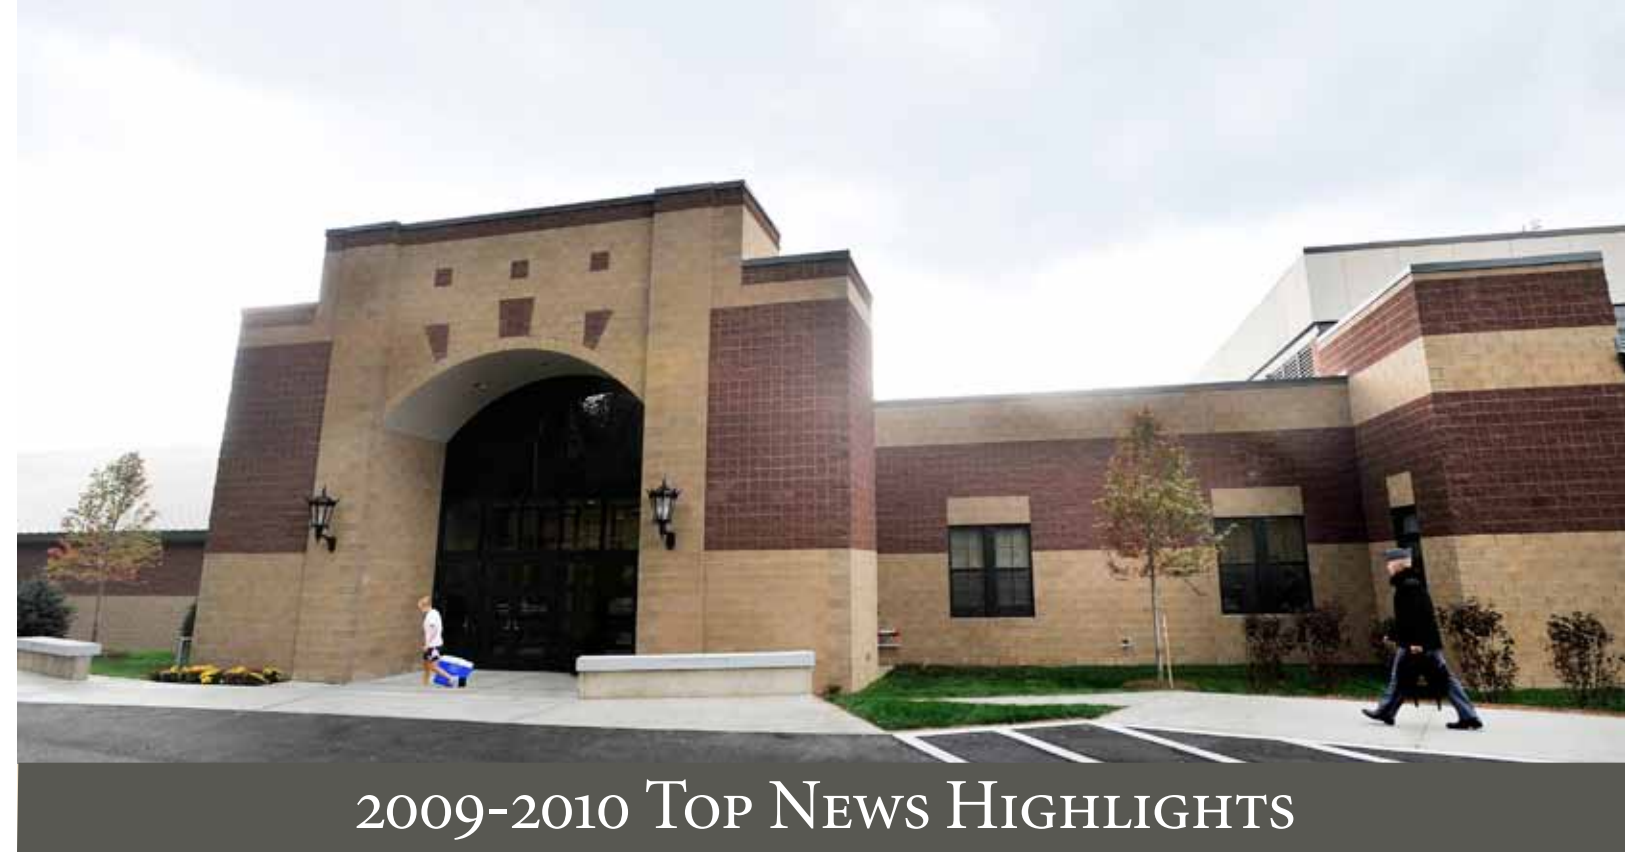

You are the ones making this possible. Your generosity is providing the margin of excellence that makes Norwich University an impact player on the world stage. The quality of our incoming students, our winning athletic teams, our growing national reputation—all are because of you. Together, we are building on the successes of those who came before to make Norwich a better school—student by student, year by year, century by century.

We are on a winning path, and it is all thanks to you.

Norwich forever!

KADMAR Richard W. Schneider, USGGR (Ret.)

The Garrison Associates: Recognizing Faithful Giving

NORWICH UNIVERSITY BELIEVES EVERY GIFT COUNTS AND EVERY DONOR MUST BE ACKNOWLEDGED.

INDIVIDUALS who give consistently and with longevity are deserving of special recognition that is as lasting as their devotion to their alma mater.

The Partridge Society, Norwich University's donor recognition society, is proud to present the newest branch of recognition—consecutive giving. This new society recognizes those donors who give year after year without fail, regardless of the size of the financial commitment they make. Alumni and friends, recent graduates, and members of the Old Guard who demonstrate their commitment to Norwich by making a gift each fiscal year (June 1 – May 31), will be commended for ensuring that young men and women will continue to benefit from the Norwich experience for generations to come.

The consecutive giving society is named in honor of two brothers, who, during their lifetimes exemplified a continuous commitment to their alma mater through their financial, academic and volunteer leadership. Ritchie '37 and George '42 Garrison held the Norwich torch high in times of success and in times of struggle. In honor of these gentlemen who loved Norwich so much, the Partridge Society proudly announces the creation of the Garrison Associates.

George and Richie Garrison were members of the Partridge Society, the Board of Trustees, the Board of Fellows, the Alumni Association, and various other programs and activities at Norwich. Though each brother brought his own unique gifts to Norwich, our community and our University is forever changed by their involvement. Their unfaltering dedication to Norwich, and how they selflessly shared their time, talent and treasure with the University, has inspired the Partridge Society to honor them by naming its consecutive giving society in their memory.

The inaugural celebration of the Garrison Associates will be held during the Partridge Society Luncheon at Homecoming 2010. The program will include recognition of all inducted members of the Garrison Associates, with special recognition for founding members who have given consecutively for 20 years or more. Partridge Society membership now includes four categories: Annual; Lifetime (recognizing cumulative gifts of $20,000 or more); 1819 Circle (deferred gifts); and now the Garrison Associates for consecutive giving. Membership in the Garrison Associates includes:

- ◆ Special recognition in the Annual Report;
- ◆ A unique Partridge Society pin awarded every fifth year of consecutive giving, with special recognition upon reaching 20 years of consecutive giving; and
- ◆ The knowledge that you are supporting the mission, values and traditions upon which Norwich University was founded in 1819 and still upholds today—the greatest benefit of membership.

If you have not yet developed the habit of giving annually, you can start by making that first gift toward your Garrison Associates membership today! Please contact the Development Office with questions or to make a gift at 802.485.2300 or development@norwich.edu, or visit us online at <http://www.alumni.norwich.edu/givenow>.

MIND, BODY, CHARACTER: THE LEGACY OF ALDEN PARTRIDGE

CAPTAIN ALDEN PARTRIDGE'S VISION

for his "American system of education" was radical but straightforward. He wasn't interested in operating a college that graduated preachers and lawyers. The nation already had enough schools doing that.

Partridge believed the American republic needed colleges that would build the nation: graduating young adults with practical skills such as the ability to build bridges and dams, physically fit so they could march and drill for hours, and willing to serve others before self.

Partridge's American Literary, Scientific, and Military Academy was an all-male institution 191 years ago. It's hard to imagine, however, that he wouldn't be pleased with Haley Vermes, Class of 2013, a young woman who represents Partridge's ideals: she closed her freshman year with a 3.83 GPA as an environmental science major; she was a member of the basketball and softball teams; and she volunteered an hour each week during the past year to tutor grade school students.

Drawn to Norwich because of its basketball program, the rising sophomore from Westborough, Mass., says she welcomed the opportunity to immerse herself in many facets of Norwich life.

"I definitely have a lot of opportunity to get involved in the community," she says. While time management became a challenge during softball season because of the day games, Haley says she does better academically when busy. Plus, she adds, she enjoyed working with students at Northfield Elementary School.

"You could tell they were really excited to have someone from the college there spending time with them," she says.

For her basketball coach, Haley represents what he expects of his players.

“Our goal in recruiting student-athletes to Norwich University and to our women’s basketball team is to bring—in this order—good people, good students, and good basketball players to our campus,” says Coach Mark Zacher. “Having well-rounded student-athletes as a part of our women’s basketball program would seem to be at the very core of the educational philosophy of Norwich University.”

Like Haley, Mike Zemanek, Class of 2012, is developing his mind, body, and character as an active member of Norwich community. Mike was the top distance swimmer on the swim team during the 2009-2010 season. He wrapped up his second year as a computer security and information assurance major with a 3.5 GPA. In his spare time, he did volunteer work with the Naval ROTC cadets, and serves as a volunteer firefighter back home in Voorheesville, N.Y. Now a junior, Mike is a drill sergeant in the Corps and a captain of this year’s swim team. He said the challenge of swimming two hours every day, tackling Corps responsibilities, and maintaining strong grades suits his competitive nature.

“The more stuff people pile on me, the more I excel,” says Mike, who during the summer of 2010 worked as an officer for the Barre (Vt.) Police Department to help prepare for a possible career in law enforcement.

Coach Laura Dunn called Mike the hardest-working member of the men’s swim team.

“Mike is extremely dedicated,” she says. “He gives 110 percent at every practice.”

Mike’s efforts paid off with a jaw-dropping 20-second drop in his time for the 500-meter freestyle this past season. “If you drop a second or two, it’s a huge deal,” says Laura.

For Frank Vanecek, who just finished two years as interim vice president for academic affairs, his three decades of teaching at Norwich have introduced him to hundreds of students whose lives were transformed at Norwich—even if they didn’t expect such changes when they arrived on campus.

“Three years ago I had lunch with a prospective student. He told me that he was coming to Norwich to play hockey,” Frank recalls. “I told him that he was coming to Norwich for an education, and that he needed to examine all of the wonderful academic opportunities available to our students. Subsequently, this student took advantage of our extraordinary student research program and has been one of the top student research scholars for three years running. Additionally, he is now the captain of the national champions Norwich ice hockey team.”

Another member of a national championship ice hockey team is likewise making the most of his Norwich education. The quintessential well-rounded student, Ziga Ivanic ’02 was a mechanical engineering major, president of the Tau Beta Pi engineering honor society, a goalie for the Cadets ice hockey team, a member of the men’s tennis team, and valedictorian of the Class of 2002. Now living in Maryland, the Serbian native is a project manager for New West Technologies, helping to develop transportation technology that makes use of renewable energy sources.

Ziga says that the biggest thing he took away from Norwich besides his academic and athletic accomplishments was becoming a better person overall.

“Having a Norwich education, you develop a degree of integrity that takes most people years to develop,” Ziga says. “As a result, a lot of people end up trusting you much faster.”

Ziga feels that he acquired a set of values while at Norwich that one doesn’t normally learn in a classroom or on an athletic field.

“It is something that comes from your interactions with students, with teachers, with coaches, through your coursework, and through your practices with your teammates,” Ziga says. “It gives you a very good base as you venture out in the world, beyond the school.”

A classmate of Ziga’s, Kelly Chiffer McKay ’02, couldn’t agree more.

“I don’t think I was a relatively strong person before I went to Norwich,” Kelly says.

A nursing student who commissioned with Army ROTC, Kelly says her character was absolutely and unexpectedly transformed during her four years as a cadet. Now a certified nurse anesthetist who recently volunteered on a medical mission to Haiti, she remembers her initial struggles with walking the straight and narrow path on the Hill.

“I had a lot of drive and a lot of ambition,” says Kelly, who set school and pool records in long-distance swimming, “but I had a lot of issues too. I made a lot of bad decisions.”

Despite the fact that Kelly almost had to leave school after her sophomore year, she credits the moral and ethical challenges she faced as a young cadet—coupled with very dedicated and understanding mentors in the Army ROTC department—with making her the person she is today.

“That kind of exposure to those kinds of challenges, when taken advantage of, gives you the opportunity—in a protected environment—to fail, and then get yourself back together and on the right track,” says Kelly. “I was given opportunities, I was given second chances. It changed my character.”

Bearing the Torch

LEADING THE WAY TO OUR THIRD CENTURY OF SERVICE

ANYONE FAMILIAR with Norwich knows Alden Partridge founded this University to be more than a place where students would memorize facts and figures. He sought to educate the whole student—mind, body, and character.

“One hundred and ninety-one years later, we remain committed to that goal,” says President Richard W. Schneider. “More than half of our undergraduates compete in varsity, club, or intramural sports, and hundreds more are physically active as Corps members. Plus, more than three fourths participate in some sort of service project annually. That is right at the core of what it means to be a student at Norwich.”

Nine years away from the University’s bicentennial, Norwich is in the midst of a fundraising effort, Bearing the Torch, that will touch every facet of the Norwich experience—academics, student life, Corps activities, and physical fitness. Among the Bearing the Torch initiatives:

UPGRADING SABINE FIELD

The University’s premier outdoor athletic space will soon have a synthetic turf surface, allowing multiple teams, such as rugby, soccer and lacrosse, to play in front of home crowds—even on the same day.

Although Sabine Field is the University’s best-known outdoor athletic venue, a single team uses it on a handful of days each year. One Saturday afternoon football game tears up the sod so badly that it must sit idle for at least six days.

In addition to laying down new turf, Norwich will make the following upgrades to Sabine:

- ◆ Install stadium lighting, which will allow Norwich to host night games;
- ◆ Construct new bleachers and a new press box; and
- ◆ Create an attractive plaza between Sabine Field and Plumley Armory to welcome guests to sporting events.

With these changes, Sabine will be large enough to accommodate intercollegiate football, lacrosse, rugby and soccer games.

LEADERSHIP DEVELOPMENT

The 2010-2011 academic year marks the third year of Norwich piloting its new Leadership Enhancement And Development (LEAD) program, a major push to nurture leadership skills in all undergraduates on the Norwich campus.

Artist’s rendering of the renovated Sabine Field

Vice President for Student Affairs and Commandant Michael B. Kelley ’74 says LEAD focuses on sophomores, with an emphasis on emotional intelligence, a means for developing leaders that recognizes that the human brain is wired for emotions. Emotional intelligence, or ET, is generally defined as meaning the ability to read human emotions to maintain positive relationships even in times of challenge, conflict and crisis. The U.S. Army and many corporations are now using ET in their leadership development programs.

Beginning this fall, sophomores who want to accept leadership roles on campus—such as becoming a civilian resident advisor or corporal academic mentor—must participate in the six-hour co-curricular introduction to LEAD.

SOLAR DECATHLON

In a collaborative effort that will involve every school on our campus, Norwich is aiming to prepare a successful Solar Decathlon application for the 2013 competition. Rather than simply focusing on this one-time event, however, Norwich is committing to become a leader in the research and development of affordable alternative-energy housing in northern New England. This will involve the construction of solar house modules on the Norwich campus.

Because of their ability to be transported, these structures could be used as disaster-relief housing or to protect members of the armed forces in any corner or climate on the planet.

Norwich's new Center for Integrated Studies in the Built Environment (CISBE) will provide the forum for bringing together faculty and students from across the Norwich campus to work on this project. CISBE is a joint-research center established by the University's architecture, engineering, science, and management programs, and builds on Norwich's mission "to execute as well as to conceive."

OTHER BEARING THE TORCH PRIORITIES INCLUDE:

Continuing to invest in overseas studies and undergraduate research: These activities enhance students' understanding of the world around them and prepare them for careers in the military, private sector, or government.

Investing in technology: Norwich will install advanced video and audio technology in a half-dozen classrooms across campus, and also upgrade the Norwich University Advanced Computing Center facility, which allows faculty and students to research state-of-the-art software within a secure environment.

Planning for the future: Several academic programs are badly in need of new or renovated facilities, a challenge Norwich intends to address in the coming decade.

Advancing faculty development: Norwich will provide more faculty development initiatives, including a tripling of release time available for submitting papers to scholarly journals, and conducting original research.

Improving access to our history: The University will digitize and index historic documents in the Kritzberg Library Special Collections, including The Record, The Guidon, and The War Whoop.

Encouraging volunteerism: Norwich will grow the endowment for the Center for Civic Engagement.

Providing students with more co-curricular activities: The University will invest more funds in student clubs, residential life programs, and specialty units within the Corps, including Drill Team, Cavalry, Band, and Artillery.

Providing more scholarship support: Scholarship support is critical for attracting students who will excel at Norwich. The University will establish more endowed scholarship funds to provide financial assistance to deserving students.

Developing a trail network: Physical fitness is an essential element of the Norwich experience. The University will develop a four-season network of hiking and mountain-biking trails, and create recreation fields on the former ski hill.

Encouraging planned gifts: Staff in the Office of Development and Alumni Relations will continue to work with alumni and friends to explore opportunities for planned giving, such as gift annuities and charitable remainder trusts.

NORWICH FOREVER

Norwich Forever,
Queen of the Hills,
When far from thee
Still, memory thrills
Recalling
Scenes and old friendships,
Songs and old cheers.
Mem'ries that fade not
Through the changing years.

Sung to the tune of "True Blue"

*Written by Arthur Wallace Peach
Professor of English, Norwich University*
